Bastion and the Cloud

The development of new technology and its associated applications has exploded over recent years, especially in the arena of data accessibility and storage. At Bastion and Associates, we have kept pace with that growth with the development, construction and management of Network Operation Centers (NOCs), Network Management Centers and Switchroom projects.

Just like within the medical field, it is common sense that most people would not seek the help of a cardiologist for an eye infection; so it is within the construction management industry. General construction management practices are not aptly suited for the requirements, demands and complexities associated with the unique challenges of the computer and telecom industries.

At Bastion and Associates we pride ourselves on our understanding the needs of our clients. From ground up construction to retro-fit of an existing facility, each step of the design process is carefully analyzed to ensure that our client's immediate needs are met, while keeping an eye on an economically sound solution for future growth and expansion.

Professional onsite owner's representation to ensure adherence to project specifications and quality during the build-out is only part of the outstanding service offered. Contact us today and let us know how our team can assist you with all of your design, development and construction management needs with the professional service that you have come to expect from Bastion and Associates.

Respectfully,
Bastion and Associates
